

Jennifer has been creating stories and indulging in make-believe since she was old enough to walk. A long-time literature and history enthusiast, she has a BA in English from UCLA and an MA in Eighteenth-Century Studies from King's College London. She currently works as a program coordinator at a Bay Area music education non-profit.

